Amman Stock Exchange Holds Educational Lecture at the University of Jordan

The Amman Stock Exchange (ASE), represented by its CEO, Mazen Wathaifi, participated in an educational lecture on "The Amman Stock Exchange: Opportunities and Challenges." organized by the Faculty of Business at the University of Jordan for students enrolled in the "Job Readiness Skills (2)" course, which was held on Tuesday, January 6, 2026, on the university campus.

During the lecture, Wathaifi discussed the importance of the stock exchange to the economy, its operational nature, the technical and legislative frameworks governing it, its most significant developments and achievements, its future plans, and the challenges it faces.

At the end of the lecture, Wathaifi answered students' questions and inquiries on various issues related to Jordanian capital market institutions in general, and the Amman Stock Exchange in particular.

It’s worth mentioning that holding such lectures aligns with the ASE's policy and its commitment to social responsibility, as well as its dedication to strengthening partnerships with universities and disseminating knowledge and investment culture related to the national capital market and securities investment, bridging the gap between theory and practice.
